Andy Rogers joins Winter Construction as Director of Preconstruction

ATLANTA (April 24, 2012) – Winter Construction recently expanded its team with the appointment of Andy Rogers as the Director of Preconstruction for the company's commercial business unit.

Rogers joins Winter Construction with 20 years of experience in construction- all of which were spent in preconstruction/estimating. His career has included stints at R.J Griffin & Company and most recently Atlanta based Hardin Construction. Well versed in all aspects of preconstruction, Rogers' experience spans over the multi-family, hospitality, retail, higher education and religious market segments.

"Andy Rogers brings the ideal background to this role at Winter Construction, combining diverse market experience with more than 20 years in preconstruction and estimating," said Tom Nichols, Executive Vice President. "Andy Rogers has experienced firsthand the industry's highs and lows and understands the challenges that our clients face. Andy is a huge asset to the Winter Construction team."

Andy is a graduate of Georgia Institute of Technology and has resided for 24 years in Atlanta, where he enjoys running and spending time with his wife, daughter and son.

About Winter Construction:

Winter is a privately owned and operated Atlanta based construction management and general contracting company.
